Traveling in 2026

Traveling in 2026 involves significant changes in required documentation, new entry rules for international destinations, and stricter airline policies.

New Documentation and Airport Security

- REAL ID Enforcement: As of February 1, 2026, a REAL ID-compliant driver's license or another acceptable form of ID (like a passport) is mandatory for all domestic U.S. flights. Travelers without one will face a $45 fee for a temporary, 10-day ID verification process via the TSA Confirm.ID system and should expect potential delays. You can check if your ID is compliant at your state's Department of Motor Vehicles.
- Biometric Screening: Airports across the U.S. and Europe are expanding the use of facial recognition and biometric data for identity verification at check-in, security, and boarding, aiming for a "seamless screening" experience. While this is often an optional shortcut, it is becoming more widespread.
- Advanced Scanners: The rollout of advanced Computed Tomography (CT) scanners means travelers can generally leave electronics and liquids in their carry-on bags during screening. The requirement to remove shoes has also been eliminated at most checkpoints.
- Stricter Carry-On Rules: Airlines are enforcing stricter rules on the size and weight of carry-on and personal items. Be sure to check your specific airline's policy, as oversized bags will likely be gate-checked for an additional fee.

International Travel Requirements

- ETIAS for Europe: The European Travel Information and Authorization System (ETIAS) is expected to be fully operational by the fourth quarter of 2026. U.S. citizens and travelers from over 60 other visa-exempt countries will need to apply for this digital authorization online before visiting 30 European countries (the Schengen Area). The application costs €20 and is valid for three years.
- EU Entry/Exit System (EES): Fully operational by April 2026, the EES will register biometric data (fingerprints and facial images) for non-EU travelers upon entry and exit, replacing manual passport stamping.
- Increased Scrutiny for U.S. Visas: Travelers to the U.S. from visa-waiver countries may face requests to provide five to ten years of social media history and email addresses during their ESTA application process. U.S. visa applicants will also face more intense screening, potentially causing delays.

Key Travel Trends

- World Cup Impact: The 2026 FIFA World Cup, hosted across the U.S., Canada, and Mexico, will lead to unprecedented demand and potential congestion in host cities during June and July. Booking flights and accommodation well in advance is essential if traveling during this period.
- "Whycations" and Purpose-led Travel: Travelers are increasingly seeking trips with a specific purpose, such as wellness retreats, cultural immersion, or "digital detox" holidays, rather than generic sightseeing trips.
- Focus on Value: Travelers are embracing "destination dupes" (visiting less crowded, cheaper alternatives to popular spots), booking off-peak travel, and taking advantage of low-cost long-haul flights to manage budgets.
